An Empty Demonstration

THE news article in the Calgary Albertan last week stating that Social Credit has reached a "dead end" has been strenuously denied by Premier Aberhart, his cabinet ministers and his supporters. Sunday, speaking before the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute, Premier Aberhart informed an applauding audience that the article must have been published with a view to "discredit us," and possibly also "as a commercial enterprise."

Plans were laid at the meeting for a monster rally to be convened wide of scope and to take place on August 22. To object of the rally, Premier Aberhart explains, is to "show the people we are not dead." It appears to the Globe that the Social Credit government could prove this point much more conclusively and certainly much more emphatically by bringing forth legislation which will work to the benefit of the citizens of this province. A rally will prove nothing, no matter how large.

Harvesters Set Wage Scale

A massed meeting of prospective harvesters held in Edmonton over the weekend, minimum wages were set by the men for the ensuing harvesting period. The wages asked are from fifty cents to one dollar higher than those paid by farmers last year, the minimum proposed by the chairman being $2.50 for a ten-hour working day and $3.50 for an eleven-hour threshing day. Many farmers in Alberta this year will be able to pay this sum, but there are, on the other hand, those unfortunate who are paid, or whose crop will barely pay expenses.

Whether the harvesting help will be able to make these wages stick is a doubtful point. Last year wages in the Lacombe district averaged $2.00 per day up. This wage was paid "clean" board and room being included, and many farmers of this immediate district will be hard put to it to increase the wages over those paid last year. The rain last week-end flattened grain badly, increasing cutting costs enormously. Laborers should be given a break—they should be paid a good living wage, but with the price of wheat where it is today, and with conditions as they are, harvesters should not demand of the farmers more than they can reasonably expect to get.

Floating Holidays

(From the Financial Post)

THE unhappy anniversary created when Dominion Day this year fell on a Friday, thus leaving a Saturday morning to break up what would otherwise have been a splendid midsummer holiday for hundreds of thousands of working people, attracted much attention in the press throughout Canada.

The Financial Post's editorial reference to the subject has been quoted from coast to coast. In the vast majority of cases, editors agree that no harm could have been done, and much good would have resulted, if Canada's National Birthday had been celebrated on the first Monday in July rather than on an artificial calendar date.

Curiously many editors find themselves reluctant to include Armistice Day—now called Remembrance Day—in the list of holidays which might, with due respect, be observed on the Monday of the week in which Nov. 11 falls.

Why such misgivings? Remembrance Day is used to honor the heroes of all of Canada's wars. Nov. 11 happened to be the last day of the greatest of those wars, but there were other dates, even in that war, that could have been selected, such as the date of Vimy, or the date of the landing of the first Canadian troops in France.

The World Wheat Supply

(From the New York Times)

THE world oversupply of wheat traces from the war, when, in response to the urgent calls of the Allies, the overseas wheat exporting countries—Austria, Argentina, Canada and the U.S.—greatly extended their wheat lands. After the war, Europe, too, fearing lest in another war its food imports should again be cut off, set out to develop its own wheat farming by means of prohibitive tariffs, import quotas and the like. The overproduction of the post-war years was the inevitable result.

The dilemma with which the United States has been faced since 1929 still confronts us. On the one hand, we may let nature take its course in the traditional manner, until falling prices have forced enough farmers off their land to reduce the wheat supply. Or we may resort to measures of Governmental control and aid which bring at least temporary relief. The first entails widespread and prolonged hardship and impoverishment of our population and, indirectly, injury to our industry as well. The other is at best an ex-

Through the Eyes of a Country Woman

By BRIDGET

We women know all about spring-cleaning, so it is fitting that a woman should be the one to do our spring-cleaning out demands. She puts it so well that I am going to give you her own words: "Mentally spring-clean your mind, and shift the views around; Cast away all futile thoughts, and clear the littered ground; Change, arrange, make fresh decisions, free me more in vain; At any age, at any stage, it's time to start again."

There is more of it, too, all in the same strain, and it surely appealed to me. It has usually been considered that to change one's political affiliation, or one's religious faith, was a sign of mental instability; I have always thought that such changes, made after due reflection, show progress of thought, through experience. To make "fresh decisions," genuine courage is usually needed. One's mind, with the years, becomes cluttered up with many futile thoughts; one's attitude toward the never-ending daily duties becomes bored and disgusted, even surroundings can become a source of irritation. What could be better than a real spring-clean at such a juncture; a fresh start? Sit down and sort everything out, surely, get away by oneself, and examine what is worth retaining. If, by chance, a change of front is the outcome, I do not feel that it should be looked upon as vacillating, but rather as a sign that one milestone has been left behind, and we are on our way to the next.

It may seem a strange time to advocate "spring" cleaning, but, to me, it seems very appropriate time to do the job; many of our dearest beliefs are in the melting-pot, our ideals are being challenged, and, altogether, most thinking people's thoughts are in a somewhat chaotic state. Our very friends seem to be against us in many things; their words and actions rankle. We are in danger of wrong thinking when we are in this mood, and it is liable to play havoc with our hearts; so, it does seem to be the best time to sit down and sort out the wheat from the tares. High-falutin' along may stick in our minds, and begin to be accepted as truths, until we take these slogans out and examine them closely, perhaps to discover that they are worth exactly nothing.

It seems to me that this method of a mental spring-cleaning might leave us with a few definite, clear-cut ideals, ideas, and aims; and, we could then address ourselves to the task of achieving them, unhampered by ancient shibboleths. Conservation of ideas may be well in ordinary times (though I doubt it), but in transition periods, or in periods in which cranks hold sway, a revolution of ideas and principles is sometimes the only way by which sanity can be maintained.

Don't you rather think this little poem that I quoted is very applicable to us Albertans? A good mental spring-clean would be very beneficial. We have heard so much about Cultural Heritage, Basic Dividends, Unity, Monetizing Our Credit, Fusion of Parties, Co-operation, etc., and do we all realize how much or how little each one means, or to what extent, if any, they are necessary, or even possible, for us? Perhaps a good spring-cleaning might clear away so many cobwebs and much clutter that there would be nothing left, and the idea in question could be definitely discarded into the waste paper basket. Anyway, we will find lots of amusement playing this game; lots of amusement, and, I do believe, derive lots of educational worth. But it sure takes a lot of mental courage to discard a lifetime of accepted beliefs, to tear to pieces one's whole mental background, and to make confession to oneself that one has not been "going" through life consciously, exerting one's efforts and influence in the making of a better world; but that one has been merely carried along like a derelict ship, bowing to the various winds, swing about by every chance current into whose stream one may have drifted.

We see, and shudder at, the many so-called human derelicts and wrecks that we see in drift along; never pausing to think that often, in a different sense, our selves are just as much derelict in our mind, and so, to continue the analogy, a very constant danger to the human shipping of a world that still seems to be groping its way around in a fog.

Life Insurance Agent: "Do you want a straight life?"

Prospect: "Well, I like to step out once in a while."

THAT'S THE POINT

They were arguing as to whether it was correct to say of a hen "she is sitting" or "she is setting."

"The question," said the farmer, "don't interest me at all. What I want to know when I hear a hen cackle is whether she is laying or lying."

ARITHMETIC AFTER DARK

"Well, suh," replied Rufus, "Ab got two shirts like this out'n one yard last night."

pedient that solves nothing, that merely postpones a needed readjustment. The only remaining alternative would be the abandonment by Europe of its nationalistic programs, and the reopening of its wheat markets to all comers. How far such a change is still possible only time can show. The United States can, however, contribute materially by continuing its support of Secretary Hull's efforts to lower barriers to trade.

Tees Tattle Tales

By TATTLER

TEES.—A little excitement was given the district on Sunday when an aeroplane came down in a rain-storm just north of the town. Some of the people had seen or heard of it raining frogs and fish or cats and dogs but this was the first aeroplane to drop into the clouds to the knowledge of Johnny Moon, a student from the Edmonton Flying School, was given down, due to low clouds and a shortage of gasoline, in a barley field owned by Ole Holm. The pilot, after checking his location, again took to the air after a favorable time due to the height of the barley and softness of the muddy earth, landing in Frank Knight's wheat field, where the machine stayed. The only noticeable damage to the plane was badly flayed propeller blade ends, caused by cutting his location, again took to the air after a favorable time due to the height of the barley and softness of the muddy earth, landing in Frank Knight's wheat field, where the machine stayed. It is claimed by Mr. Holm that the remark so made him he had been guilty of a criminal offence. The statement was that he was serving a prison sentence for pilfering a couple of bushels of oats from the Flying School came down and loaded the machine on a truck and returned to Edmonton.

Visiter From Keoma

Mrs. Hull of Keoma spent a short holiday with her daughter, Mrs. Nelles, leaving for home on Tuesday. Monday, Mrs. Nelles served tea in her honor.

The baseball play-offs did not advance very far during the past week.

THE BASEBALL.—Nestor had invaded the Tees sand heap but the Tees boys held them to a 5-5 draw, unbeknown because of darkness. A game was then called for Sunday afternoon, which was rained out. It now looks as though the final play-offs with Sargent will have to be played after the last keyed session.

The heavy rain and rains held up several farmers who had intended getting away to a start cutting grain Monday morning, but the mottles will be welcome to late crops and no complaints to be heard.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall took in the old-timers' picnic at Lacombe Tuesday and Miss Jean Marshall left for a short vacation at Bentley with her aunt, Mrs. Bert Thorpe.

Plain Tale of a Tail Plane

A famous designer of aircraft was studying closely a stuffed bird in a museum.

"That bird appears to interest you, sir," ventured an attendant.

"It certainly does," was the reply.

The World of Wheat

By MAJOR H. L. STRANGE

This is a proud year for one of the oldest and purest races of white people in the world. I mean our good friends the Swedes.

The year 1938 is the 300th anniversary of the first settlement of the Swedish people on the American continent. They have since successfully colonized large areas in the United States and in Canada.

Tacitus, the great Roman historian, 68 A.D., just 1840 years ago, wrote of the sturdy Swedes under a strong King, cultivating

those who like good coffee

will have an opportunity to buy it at a considerable saving during the special harvest season offer, which is being made by the Nash Tea and Coffee Importers.

Until September 15th, stores will be selling the one and three-pound cartons of Nash's Jubilee Coffee with authority from the packers to allow a cash credit for the printed bottoms of these containers to the extent of 50 cents for every pound represented.

When you consider that the printed bottoms containing the purchase of Nash's Jubilee Coffee will give you one pound free, it can be readily seen what a generous offer is being made.

Nash Tea and Coffee Importers have been known for many years as Quality packers of Teas and Coffees. Besides the cartons containing which we put out to insure the maximum protection of the coffee flavor, they have their Jumbo packages expressly designed to not only give value but to provide useful containers.

For instance you may purchase 5 and 10 pounds of Nash's Jubilee Coffee in a large quantity, and at the same time obtain valuable containers which can be used for many other purposes.

HENDERSON—BOYS

Of considerable interest was a wedding which took place at the home of Mr. William R. Boys on Wednesday, Aug. 5, at 2 p.m., when his sister, Miss Ethel Agnes Boys, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Boys of Victoria, B.C., was united in marriage to Mr. Wesley Henderson of Youbou, B.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson of Viscount, Sask.

Rev. J. A. Perrine of Morning Star Methodist Church officiated as the bridal couple stood under a canopy of pink and white streamers, centered with a white wedding bell and with a background of fern and flowers. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William R. Boys, and looked very charming in a silk leotard and georgette pink rose at the neck line. Full pleated sleeves and skirt, and white accessories, made an effective costume. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

Miss Alice M. Boys, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid, and she wore pink georgette with full skirt and silver accessories. Her flowers were heliotrope sweet peas.

For the occasion, Mrs. Boys, the bride's mother, was gowned in navy and white sheer, with white accessories.

HOLIDAY opportunities in the thousands of lakes, rivers and streams of Canada afford fishing opportunities which are unequalled anywhere in the world. The wide distribution of lakes in Canada are liberally supplied with forest and lake-land, abounding with game fish and animals, where lovers of the great outdoors can find a district to suit their every whim.

Fishing conditions are so varied in Canada and the species of game fish are so numerous that a booklet is required merely to list all the fish and regulations of the different sections. Deep-sea fishing is found on both ocean coasts, for half-a-mile off Nova Scotia and equally large lakes in Vancouver Island; five-pound small-mouth black bass at the Devil's Gap Camp, Lake of the Woods; and the numerous streams of lakes in Eastern Canada, vie for popularity with 40-pound muskies at such favored resorts as the French River Camp, Ontario. On the lakes of the Rockies several species are found everywhere in Canada, most popular regions among anglers being the Great Lakes, Manitoba, north of Montreal, on the many lakes surrounding Banff and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies; and mighty salmon bring joy to the hearts of anglers in the Maritimes and elsewhere.

These few highlights of Canada's many fishing opportunities illustrate why Canadian sportsmen from all over the world come to fish every year by so many thousand anglers from the United States and overseas. Conditions, possibilities and regulations vary widely in different provinces so that anglers planning to visit strange districts would do well to find out all about them in the publications of A. O. Goss, General tourist agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal, or from fishing booklets obtainable at all Canadian Pacific offices.

Pool Claims Credit for Forming of Wheat Board

(A Wheat Pool Bulletin)

It is gratifying to note the degree of solidarity with which the majority of the people of Western Canada have gotten behind the Wheat Board this year and made representations to the government in support of a reasonable initial payment. It is many years since the west showed such an united front.

The fact that there is a Wheat Board today is due to the determined insistence of the Wheat Pools of Western Canada. These organizations sent a delegation after delegation to Ottawa during the past eight years to press the need of a Wheat Board before the federal government. They also presented the case for Wheat Board before various government inquiries and missions. In all these activities they had the support of the United Farmers of Alberta, the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, and the United Farmers of Manitoba. A few other organizations such as the Association of Rural Municipalities gave appreciated support.

The need for a Wheat Board during the depression years was obvious. In most countries of the world wheat had been taken out of the economic field and became a political question. Canada was slow to realize what had occurred, largely due to the advice of economists of the orthodox school and the grain trade of this country. Their contention was that the adverse conditions being experienced by wheat producers were transitory and would shortly disappear.

Of course, the trouble started when the world raised a record wheat crop in 1928 and stock markets collapsed in 1929, when the depression was ushered in. Wheat sank so low in price that in some instances the railways carrying the grain got more for their services than did the producers. The world's surplus was up until it reached the total of over 1,100 million bushels.

Some people soothily said that low prices would increase consumption and the surplus would be taken care of in that way. But consumption did not increase because of low prices. In fact it has remained remarkably even during the past ten years.

The surplus was eventually cleaned up, but by what process?—six-year drought in North America, the worst this continent has experienced in 50 years. The U.S. became a world wheat importer for the first time in 100 years. The Canadian prairies were scorched by year after year of excessive, unprecedented drought.

In addition, another large wheat exporting nation, Argentina, experienced two major crop disasters with only one year intervening. In 1935 Argentina had one of the worst droughts in her history and last fall a severe frost destroyed at least 70 million bushels of wheat.

So that it took a series of calamities following each other in quick succession in three of the great wheat exporting countries of the world to get rid of the wheat surplus which was really started by the huge 1928 crop, and to restore the price level to a decent figure.

There is a fair crop in Western Canada this year. A large number of farmers, who haven't had anything like a crop for six or seven years, will have some wheat this fall. The fairly high prices of the past two years meant nothing to them, for they got no benefit from them. This
